A 4-H Project in Safety

It's smart to be safe! In Florida 4-H, safety is a top priority. It takes thinking to establish and maintain safety habits. You as a 4-H member have many opportunities during 4-H activities to practice and promote safety. By practicing it often you will develop it as a habit, which is a smart thing to do. By promoting safety, you will help others to practice safety.

You as a 4-H member can be a real leader in farm, home and community safety. You can do it alone as part of your own 4-H projects and activities. You can do it as a member of a group, club project or activity.

A hazard is any practice or condition that makes it possible for an accident to occur. Most conditions and practices that could cause an accident are easy to see -- if you will look and think. If they can be removed, remove them. If not, guard the hazard, wear protective equipment, and warn others of the dangers. In this way accidents will be less likely to happen.

This 4-H Safety Project will help you practice safety so as to benefit you, your home, and your community. You will find safety work belongs in all your 4-H projects and activities. You will also find opportunities in which safety is the major emphasis of the project or activity. Ask your 4-H leader to show you the publication 4-H 89 4-H Safety Program Plans. It will give you many ideas of safety projects and activities you and your club can accomplish.

Your safety efforts should make you feel good. You are helping others prevent accidents, injury and, yes, even death. All the time you will be learning, you will be teaching others, be developing leadership abilities and be recognized for your concern and efforts. You may find that your safety projects and activities are one of your more rewarding experiences.

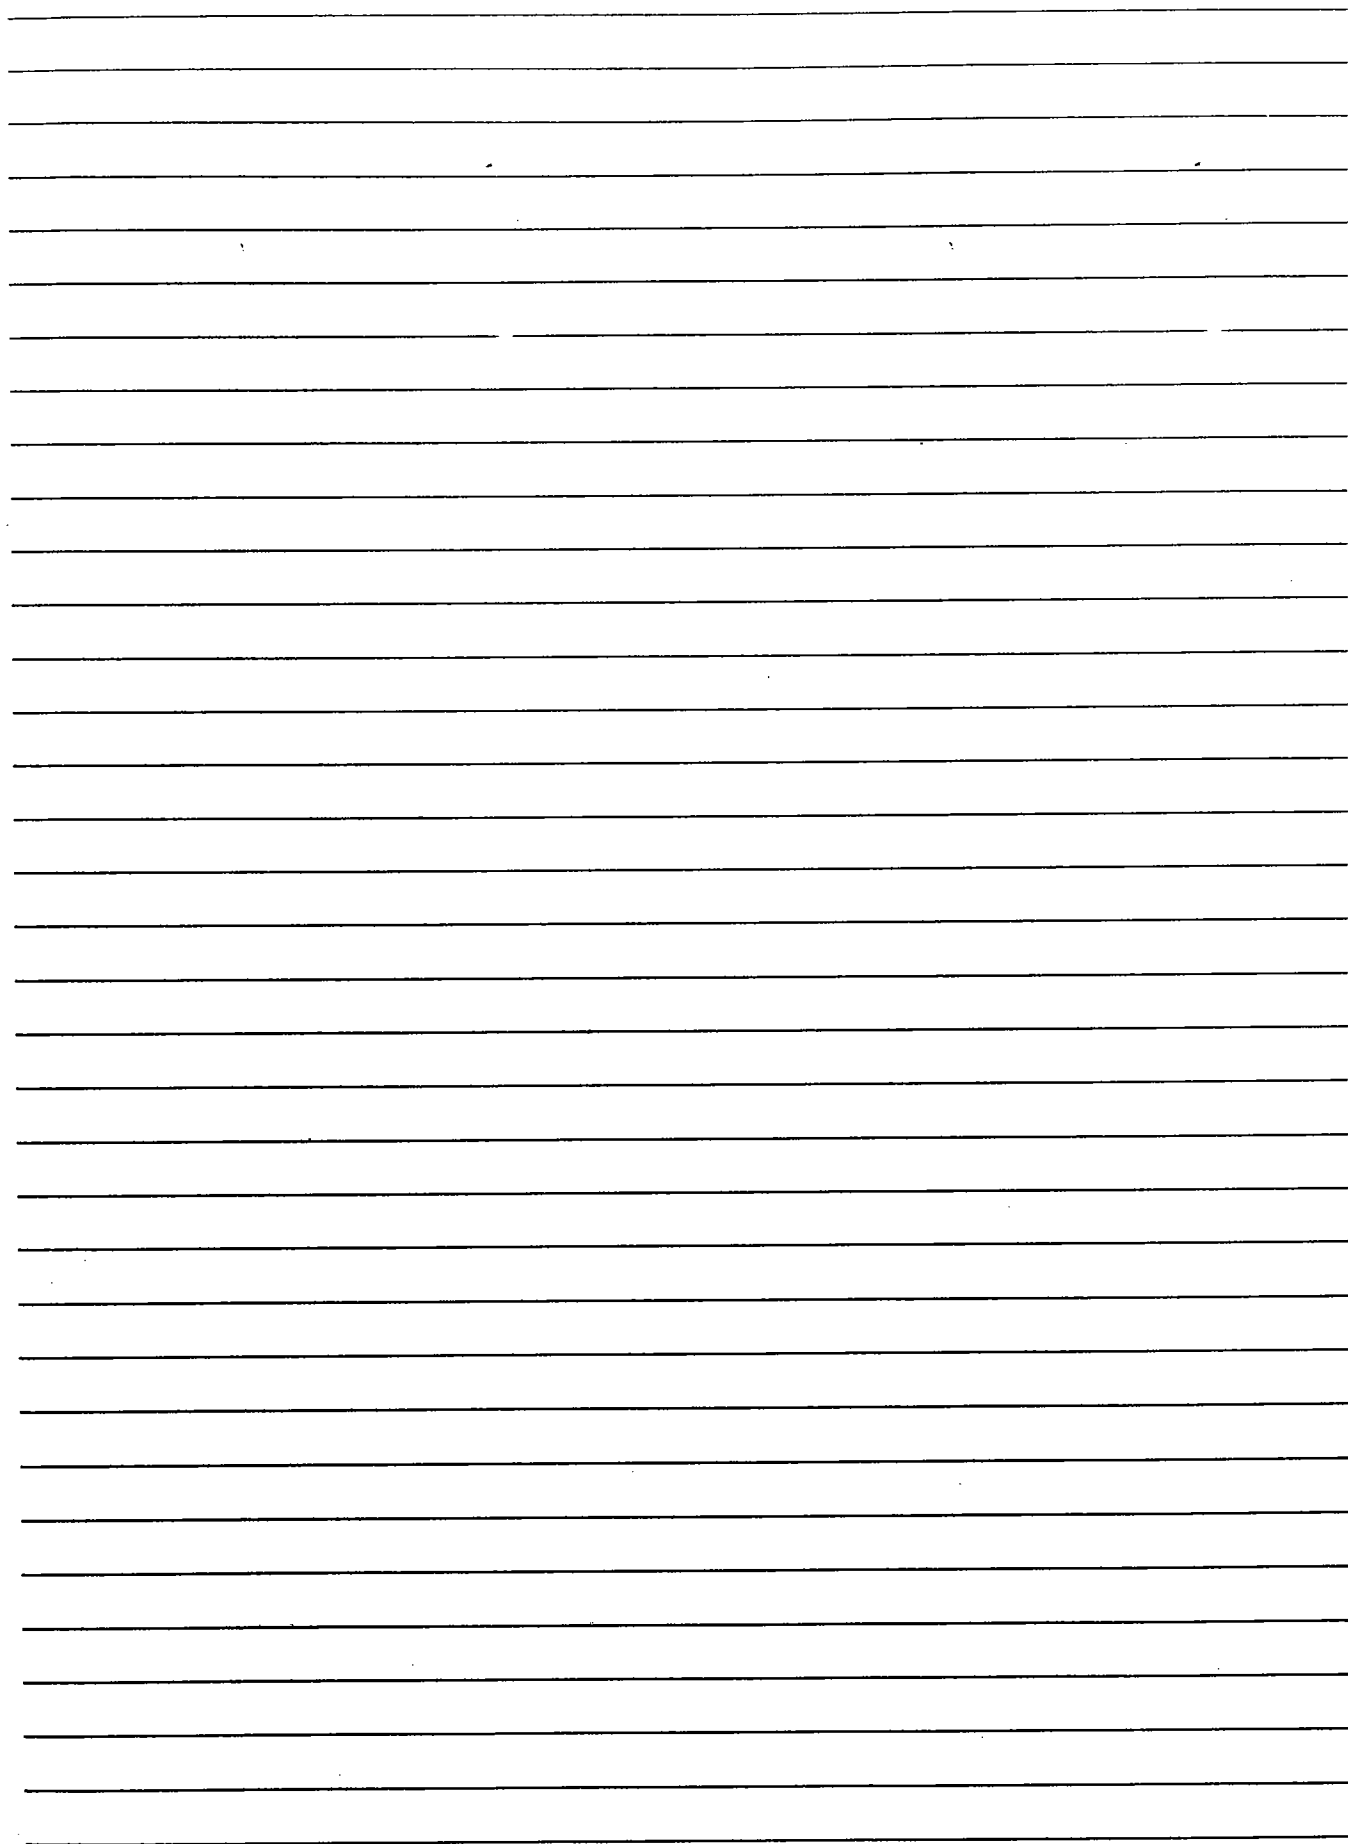

Throughout your 4-H experience you will want to keep an accurate record of your safety activities and accomplishments. To do this you will want to complete one of the center sheets in this booklet (both front and back) for each of your major safety programs and activities. Additional Safety Project or Activity sheets are available from your 4-H Leader. Keep adding these sheets to your 4-H Safety Record Book each year.

Good luck with your safety project. MAKE SAFETY YOUR TOP PRIORITY!

III. ACTIVITIES - RESULTS - Explain what you did and what you accomplished. Did you conduct safety inspections? Correct hazards? Attend safety meetings? Give demonstrations? Distribute safety literature? Did you teach others about safety? Were you a safety leader? List all your safety activities and give the results of each.
